Excited?

By—Tim Henderson

What gets you excited? A closely fought game? A sale at your favorite store? Your favorite TV show? That latest, greatest new blockbuster that is about to hit the big screen? Perhaps the twitch at the end of your fishing rod as that big, stinky bass nibbles at the hook? An 8 point buck centered in the crosshairs of your sight? A painting? A book? A valley?

How do you show your excitement? Do you discuss it for hours on end with friends? Call up someone to join you on a shopping spree? Plan your schedule around that favorite show? Buy all of the merchandise associated with the movie? Spend hours on the lake waiting? Awaken before dawn so you can be on the stand in the crisp, freezing morning? Travel to museums? Spend days reading? Travel and vacation there?

There are so many things that excite us in life. We show our excitement for these things in the way we prepare ourselves, spend money, study (even a hunter or fisherman will spend money and time studying their prey), talk to others, devote ourselves to it, give up other things to have it, or see it, whatever “it” may be.

What excites you? You know, and you know what level your excitement is. But let me ask you something. Does the local church excite you? Do you look forward to it? Discuss it for hours on end with your friends? Schedule your life around it? Devote hours to study and preparation for the next time you can be together? Does it get your blood pumping with anticipation? When services are over, are you anxiously awaiting the next opportunity to be together?

These are some things perhaps we should think about. There is nothing wrong with being excited about things in this world, but we should be wary when our level of excitement for these exceeds our excitement for the local church, Jesus, God, Heaven.

“I was glad when they said to me, ‘Let us go to the house of the Lord’” —Psalm 122:1
